- The number of states in which a foreign-educated applicant sat for a bar exam has grown by approximately 50% since 1992. [19→29 for 2010-2012; 19→28 in 2013].
- Since 2002, the number of foreign-educated applicants has approximately tripled in states other than New York and California. [140→429 in 2012; 140→415 in 2013].

* This is an Updated and Corrected Version of what was included as Appendix B in the American Bar Association Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar, Report of the Special Committee on International Issues (July 15, 2009) and Item #2 of Laurel Terry's Supporting Materials for the presentation entitled Globalization Comes to Main Street: U.S. Impact of Global Regulatory Trends at the National Conference of Bar Examiners meeting held April 20, 2012 in Savannah.

[†] For the years 1992-1996 and 2003-2005, California reported "0" foreign-educated applicants. Foreign-educated applicants may have been included in California's "Non-ABA-Approved-Law School" columns.

^bCalifornia does not recognize U.S. attorneys taking the general bar examination as being from either ABA-approved or non-ABA-approved law schools. This number of applicants (993 taking, 588 passing) is therefore omitted from either category. California's "U.S. Attorneys Taking the General Bar Exam" category is composed of attorneys admitted in other jurisdictions less than four years who must take, and those admitted four or more years who have elected to take, the general bar examination.

^cApplicants under California's four-year qualification rule who did not earn J.D. degrees (50 taking, 4 passing) are not included in either the ABA-approved or non-ABA-approved category. California's four-year qualification rule allows applicants to take the general bar examination through a combination of four years of law study without graduating from a law school.

^bCalifornia does not recognize U.S. attorneys taking the general bar examination as being from either ABA-approved or non-ABA-approved law schools. This number of applicants (962 taking, 539 passing) is therefore omitted from either category. California's "U.S. Attorneys Taking the General Bar Exam" category is composed of attorneys admitted in other jurisdictions less than four years who must take, and those admitted four or more years who have elected to take, the general bar examination.

^cApplicants under California's four-year qualification rule who did not earn J.D. degrees (66 taking, 9 passing) are not included in either the ABA-approved or non-ABA-approved category. California's four-year qualification rule allows applicants to take the general bar examination through a combination of four years of law study without graduating from a law school.

¹Numbers reflect participation in Cuban-American law institute program created by the Supreme Court of Florida in 1973.

²Only graduates of certain non-ABA-approved law schools in Massachusetts are permitted to take the exam.

³The only applicants that are non-ABA that qualify to sit for the Mississippi Bar Exam are those applicants who, as of November 1, 1981, were or had been previously enrolled in a law school in active existence in Mississippi for more than ten (10) years prior to the date of application shall be eligible for examination for admission, provided that such an applicant must have graduated from such law school prior to November 1, 1984. This law school, formerly Jackson School of Law, is Mississippi College School of Law, the only law school that falls under this rule.

⁴Not normally permitted, but court waived requirement.

⁵Normally, graduates of law schools outside the USA are not permitted to take the General Bar Exam. However, one individual requested a waiver by petition.

⁶Only English Common Law & granted by Supreme Court. So far only 1 passed.

⁷Applicants must meet other criteria under rule 2.25 in order to qualify as applicants.

⁸Allowed to sit with 5 years' practice in reciprocal states. Fewer than 10 per year.

⁹Not normally permitted. One Canadian graduate petitioned Supreme Court and was approved.

¹⁰These applicants received a portion of their legal education in a foreign law school and, in addition, in accordance with our Rules, received a degree from an ABA-approved law school other than an LL.B. or a J.D.
